Poor Business and Easy Money Cause Stocks to Halt and Hesitate.

SWING TO LOWER PRICES.

Tendency Is Unmistakable, Though Operations Are Curtailed and Business Appears Professional in Nature.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL

New York, May 1.-Irresolute and unde-cided, the stock market for the greater part of the week halted, as though unable to determine in what direction the next move would be. Expert market observers advanced the theory that securities hung motionless, or substantially so, as a re-sult of conflicting influences, poor business upon the one hand, easy money upon

Between these two forces, at first, equipolse seemed fairly well maintained, but at the last cumulative influence of an un-favorable nature swung the balance in favor of lower prices. The tendency was unmistakable, though operations were much curtailed and bosiness appeared to be largely professional in nature.

It is not much to be wondered at that stocks worked lower. They have experienced a very substantial recovery from the low prices of last September, or even of March, and though general business upon either of these occasions was not upon either of these occasions was not what it had been there were no such evidences of severe and widespread commercial and industrial reactions as are now crowding upon business men and financial interests.

Given two such influences as poor business and easy money, it requires no expert to determine which will gain the ascendancy. Under such conditions speculative prices, particularly if they are at a fairly high level, will recede through inantition, if for no other reason.

It was noted that, while the prices of spaculative securities were for the most part sagging lower, the better grade of bonds was improving. This is an encouraging sign. Not that the movement has yet reached a stage that foreshadows an immediate change in the situation, but it is a development along the proper lines and one that works relief in time. The selection of high-grade issues and their improvement is an indication that distrust and fear rather than confidence are still controlling forces in the market.

REPUBLIC SPECIAL.

Telluride, Colo., May 1—On the decision of the State Supreme Court in the Moyer habeas corpus case, hearing of which begins Thursday, hangs the question of the continuance of the drastic methods employed by Governor Peahody in the mining camp of Telluride.

Colorado has a fight on its hands against what is said to be a "ring" in the Western Federation of Miners, and conditions exist through the State that have united the business men in alliance for the purpose of stamping out not tradesunionism, but socialism among the unions.

A military government in three counties during the last year has met with diverse results. The suspension of habens corpus is the extremest of the measures adopted. "This war is opera bouffe," smeers Secretary W. D. Haywood of the Western Federation of Minera "Let them try to pass our sentries, and we will turn them into fertilizera," threatens General Bell, in command of the forces of coupation. In Telluride Basin to-day conditions exist that are unique in American history, Habaas corpus has been suspended by Covernor Peahody unruly citizens have

MONEY IS ACCUMULATING.

Whatever else may be obscured or confused in the financial and industrial world at the present time, the two facts are obvious that business is contracting and money is accumulating to a degree which makes wealth an embarrassment to banks and financial institutions. It no longer requires the careful collation and scrutny of commercial and industrial statistics or the study of the various indicia of trade to determine the question of business reaction. It is talked about in the clubs and cafes, on street corners and in public conveyances—in fact, wherever husiness men meet and compare notes. Reaction is recognized as a present condition, not an economic possibility of academic theorists. It is the impelling force and controlling influence in the markets, but no one can tell to what extent it will affect markets, for no one can determine to what extent past declines discount the prevailing conditions.

It means much to Wall street and the business community if it can determine thus early whether the present interval of industrial contraction is the result of the stock collapse or due to other causes. An argument upon the point could be sustained on either side. In the accumulation of money, the failing off in business, the dealeastions of bank clerks, bank failures, increasing commercial defaults and gradual sapping of confidence it contains every element of depression following a crisis.

Wall street prices may have discounted at the present time, the two facts are obnounced Thirdsday when discussing the hearing of habeas corpus point before the Supreme Court, May a, on which will depend whether the acts of the Governor get the approval of the bench or not.

In Telluride the six-shooter is sovereign. The lawiess element has been evicted from the country, but threatens to return as soon as the vigilance is relaxed, and the soldiers are watching for a sortie from the mountain passes and another eruption.

hours or better their condition.

As a barometer of public sentiment, an address delivered by Senator Patterson before the American Federation of Labor in Denver last week is still being discussed throughout the State. Inasmuch as Senator Patterson has sided with the unions throughout, and is a bitter opponent of the State administration, the following paragraph from his speech has caused woe to the labor agitators: ery element of depression following a crisis.

Wall street prices may have discounted much of what is now developing in industrial quarters, but there is no certainty as to that, for it is one unpleasant fact of the study of crises and depressions that crises do not always precede, but that on occasions they develop midway in the period of depression, as the crisis did in the year 1854.

In time confidence will come back, and it will manifest itself in the security market first. But there are too many uncertainties in the future to lead to the belief that that time is yet at hand. "The appalling thing to me is that a strong public sentiment stands behind the

A pencil manufacturer said the other day, as he handed me a hexagonal bit of yellow wood: "That is the finest pencil made in the whole world. It is the "Kohi-noor" and it comes from Austria." "Do you mean to confess that your pencils are inferior." To that, yes, We have tried in vain to imitate it. I hate to acknowledge it, but the fact speaks for itself." Try a Koh-i-noor.

Labor Leaders Noncommittal. Indianapolis, Ind., May 1.—Vice Presi-tent Thomas Lewis and Secretary-Treasurer W. B. Wilson of the United Mine Workers of America to-night refused to talk of the meeting of the National Exec-utive Board, which to-day continued the discussion of the strike situation in dis-trict is. They intimated, however, that the board would continue consideration of the matter to-morrow.

Dead Horse Stirs Seighborhood. The body of a horse has lain at Nine teenth and Madison streets since last Friday afternoon, and the stench has become so sickening that the people in that neigh-borhood cannot stand it, declared E. P. Hennessy, a mail carrier, who lives at No. 1613 North Niresteenth street, last night. Mr. Hennessy said that he called up the Board of Health and the Police Depart-ment in an effort to have the body re-moved, but that he got no satisfaction.

Chair Car Jumps Track. A chair car on the noon southbound Illi-nois Central passenger train got tangled in the maze of tracks at the Relay Sta-tion, East St. Louis, yesterday, and caused a delay to traffic on the southern approach to the Bads Bridge for several hours. No one was hurt. The front tracks followed the train, but the rear tracks jumped the track and went up the Eads Bridge in-cline. This turned the car around.

Large crowds attended the baseball games at Believille yesterday. The Believille yesterday. The Believille Bs were defeated for the first time this year. The Ben Millers of St. Louis won by a score of 5 to 2. The Simpson Stars defeated the Covingtons of St. Louis by a score of 7 to 2.
